GRADUATION CEREMONIES – 2008

High School Seniors

Twenty-one high school seniors bade farewell to their school on June 9, 2008. The graduation ceremony, held at St. John's Armenian Church Cultural Hall, began with the procession of proud seniors. Following the procession, high school head teacher and master of ceremonies, Judith Kadri welcomed parents and guests and presented the program.

Dr. Richard Marburger, chairman of the board of education, delivered his greetings; and Dr. Hosep Torossian, high school principal, expressed his pride in the many achievements that were accomplished at Manoogian High School in his address. "We give you the tools necessary to be successful citizens of our nation. Go ahead and use them with skill, with honesty and integrity," said the principal, who also acknowledged the unwavering commitment of the Manoogian faculty. Dr. Torossian then highlighted the many success stories attained by Manoogian students.

Following his address, Dr. Torossian introduced the keynote speaker, Dr. Roy Misirliyan, himself a graduate of the class of 1980 who received his M.D. in 1990 from Wayne State University. His professional affiliation includes: Fellow of American College of Cardiology, American Medical Association, American Society of Echocardiography and American Society of Nuclear Cardiology. Dr. Misirliyan, in his speech, conveyed the core values of humanity: cherishing family and heritage, and determination in achieving goals in personal life. With great admiration, he acknowledged the late Alex and Marie Manoogian, founders of Manoogian School, who, with their generosity and vision, enabled two generations of Armenian and non-Armenian students to receive a quality education in a safe and family-oriented environment. Dr. Misirliyan urged the new graduates, as responsible citizens of this great nation, to get involved in public life and to try to make America a better place to live.

The class president, Sali Kesto, and vice president, Vazken Hartounian, presented the senior class gift. Salutatorian Angelica Terhune read a poem dedicated to the class of 2008. She and valedictorian Nayiri Kaissarian, respectively, addressed those in attendance, stressing the important role Manoogian School has played in their lives. Each of the 21 graduates proceeded to the stage to receive their diplomas from Dr. Torossian, while head teacher, Judy Kadri presented their high school achievements and future plans.

During the ceremony, lower school principal, Dyana Kezelian, recognized this year's donors to the Manoogian School: Special Projects, $120,000; Armenians from Istanbul, $7,500; Detroit Armenian Women's Club, $500; Daughters of Vartan, $1,000; and School PTO, $10,000.
